Who Does Affirmative Action Protect? Everyone

The Grievance Procedure

The grievant can be a student, employee, and/or parent.

1. An individual will submit in writing and identify the affirmative action area being violated.
2. The Affirmative Action Officer will carry out a thorough investigation of the incident and submit a report to the Superintendent of Schools.
3. The grievant may then appeal to the Board of Education, County Commissioner, or Office of Civil Rights.
4. The procedure will be confidential but not anonymous, since witnesses will need to be questioned.

“It takes committed teachers and administrators willing to set high expectations and offer engaging curricula that make strong personal connections for their students. It takes schools where students are not just prepared to take and pass standardized tests, but where they are taught how to play a conscious, active role in society, how to recognize and combat racism and other institutionalized inequities, and how to work in pursuit of the dream of social and global justice.”
